Down the street, the dogs are barking
And the days are getting dark
As the night comes in a-falling
All the dogs will lose their bark

In the silence, madness shatters
From the sounds inside my mind

[CHORUS]

I know there's one too many mornings
One too many mornings, yes, sir
One too many mornings since
You're gone, since you're gone

Now from the
Crossroads of my doorstep
My eyes start to fade
As I turn my head back to the room
Where my love and I have stayed

And I gaze back to the street
At the sidewalks and the signs

[Repeat CHORUS]

Now it's a restless hungry feeling
That don't mean no one no good
Yeah, when anything that I'm saying
You could say it just as good

Well, you're right from your side
Yes, but I'm right from mine

We know there's one too many mornings
One too many mornings
One too many mornings since
You're gone, hey, since you're gone

We ought to talk about
One too many mornings, yeah
One too many mornings, come on now
One too many mornings since

You're gone, since you're gone
