Better news came today we can leave this awful place-today.

Yellow-lit long hallways I have paced through pondering fate- for days.

Shake fists angry at the sky time well spent pleading
your right to life.

My tiny soul put through tasks flying colors now you've passed you passed!

The sun beaming down thru the fog warms my face
now I am feeling good.

I'm walking away with you in my arms I wish I never would

Ever think about this day,
I will not ever forget what I could have lost.

I'm thankful to god for the moon and the stars and ice-cream we will share.

The noises you make and the smile on your face, the wavy curls in your hair.

And when I think about this day,
I will not ever forget what I could have lost.
