I've never felt so undeserving
Then when You called out for me
I've never been more unworthy
When You reached down for me

I'm lifting hands, stained and dirty
To touch my Savior's face
And I know now, I am touching grace

You see everything I do
But still You love me
You hear everything that I say
But still You want me

You know all my darkest secrets
That I try so hard to hide
You know everything I am
But still You love me, still You love me

Amazing love, how can it be
That You would die for me
Amazing grace, oh, the mystery
My blinded eyes now see

When I fall, when I stumble
I struggle to my feet
Just to find grace is lifting me

You see everything I do

But still You love me
You hear everything that I say
But still You want me

You know all my darkest secrets
That I try so hard to hide
You know everything I am
But still You love me

There's nothing I can say
To make You turn away

There's nowhere I can go
You're never far away

You see everything I do
But still You love me
You hear everything I say
But still You want me

You see everything I do
But still You love me
You hear everything that I say
But still You want me

You know all my darkest secrets
That I try so hard to hide
You know everything I am
But still You love me, still You love me
Still You love me
