My heart, beats like, it's on fire
And everything is alright, as long as I am inspired
I stitch together my life from hand-me-downs,
And good advice that finally fit me (good advice that finally fit me)

Wear my heart, where my head should be
And light up the rest of me
'Cause in dreams they wont fall apart
Through the start, it starts
When your life is a work of art

I found this door to my inside
I flung it open so dreams could rush in like a heart attack
I learned a lot and I lived in a fairytale
'Cause in the end I'm not pretending ('Cause in the end I'm not pretending)

Wear my heart, where my head should be
And light up the rest of me
'Cause in dreams they wont fall apart
Through the start, it starts
When your life is a work of art

My heart, where my head should be
And light up the rest of me
'Cause in dreams, they wont fall apart
Through the start, it starts
When your life is a work of art

When your life is a work of art

'Cause my heart keeps tumbling
And I keep fumbling
My life keeps coming
And I jump in the ocean

My heart keeps tumbling
And I keep fumbling
And I think I am finally ready (ready ready ready)

I put my heart where my head should be
And light up the rest of me
'Cause my dreams they wont fall apart
Through the start, it starts
When your life is a work of art

I put my heart where my head should be
And light up the rest of me
'Cause my dreams they wont fall apart
Through the start, it starts
When your life is a Work of Art.
