My keeper, my Savior, who claims the threat of raging seas.

Before you, your mercy, remove the sting of winters breath.

Your flame will burn, Death wont waste away, Hell can't stop us now, You will bring us home.

These deep dark visions keep entering from my hallow soul, this is not intended...

My heart spills the brightest red for you, this life you've given me, separates light and dark.

Your flame will burn, Death wont waste away, Hell can't stop us now, you will bring us home.

By the break of dawn I can fell your flame, Notion to my soul the skies wide open.
