You choose your own direction
You never want to settle down
You might just fall to pieces
If you stay the same

You want your own religion
You always knew right from wrong
You used to be good looking
But now you hide your face

Like a secret
Like a mystery
Like a stone upon the shore forever more
You walk the road into the arms of strangers

You have your own solutions
You find a path and then you're gone
And once again you loose it
Why are you so sad?

You tell the ones who miss you
In letters from a nameless land
That things are getting darker
And you're not coming back

Like a secret
Like a mystery
Like a stone upon the shore forever more
You walk the road into the arms of strangers
