Masquerade
Masquerade
Alright, now listen

I've got a friend who had a schoolboy dream
He wanted every luxury that money could bring
He fancied himself as a king of the castle
Impressing all the ladies with the size of his car

But none of them would have it, they left the morning after
As a giver of love he was a walking disaster

Who will ever know of this charade
Unless you tell us who you really are
How far will you go down a road that's paved with gold
But takes away your soul?

Come to masquerade
Keep your heart out of sight
You can be a winner
A master of disguise

Then one night he met a beautiful girl
She was a viable concern, he couldn't help thinking

But he ran out of small talk and started to panic
The comedy was turning into something tragic

Never mix business with pleasure
You can play them independently but never together

Who will ever know of this charade
Unless you tell us who you really are
How far will you go down a road that's paved with gold
But takes away your soul?

Come to masquerade
Keep your heart out of sight
You can be a winner
A master of disguise

Masquerade
Keep your heart out of sight
You can be a winner
A master of disguise
You can be a master of disguise

Masquerade
Masquerade
Masquerade
