

Canterbury "Diver"

Nothing but air's in the way and it feels like that's already below me now. I would come down, but you should come up. You should see this view from up here seems endless now.

So I'm straight out of the sunset baby and you're falling behind, but I'll keep you in mind while I run. There's no use trying to catch me up but you'll be in my mind every time I look back at the sun.

The things I'm forbidden to see have been moved into the light that seems to surround me now. I'm on fire when I'm in the sky, if you hold on I'll teach you to fly, but I could burn us alive.

It's getting crowded round here but I feel like a deepsea diver. So I'll swim back into the emptiness where I think I'll spend some time.
