I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs

Fears, one by one followed me home and became reality

I'm a failure, I'm a freak

I'm a chip on your shoulder, the last thing you need

Shudder earthquakes at the thought of life that's meaningless

And with such a promising past

But you can always count on me to choke in the end

I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs

I'll be gone long before daylight shows its face

Well, honestly I'm taking big strides in a race towards normalcy

Where more is more and less is weak

Where love is crap, emotion speaks for us all

What's really right, who's who to say I can survive alone again

Figured that out the hardest way

The forecast calls for fire, the flames sound nice today

I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs

I'll be gone long before daylight shows its face

It's old and worn and it's mouth smiles no more

Now I'm worth my weight in potting soil

Maybe I try too hard to care

I left your note on your bed, I don't recall it saying

Something like how I'm completely miserable

And I'm better off dead

I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs

I'll be gone long before daylight shows its face

It's old and worn and it's mouth smiles no more

Well, I'm worth my weight in potting soil

Maybe I try too hard to care

I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs
I can't go on, deflate the air from both of my lungs
I can't go on
