When the bough breaks down
She's always the one soul to fall
As a friend comes down
She willingly answers the call
And all she fears is being left alone
Mr. Men madness
She wants to paint all the trees blue
To avoid sadness
There's nothing she would never do
It's true, she fears to be on her own
She fears alone, alone
She talks to the walls when there's nobody home
She fears alone, alone
A face in the crowd but her fears are unknown
It's been a long winter
She wishes to go back to fall
She learned how to run
And now all that she can do is crawl
And all she fears is being left alone
She said would you leave the lights on tonight
Could we leave the lights on this time
