Oh give us peace and make us quiet. give us the truth when nothing else could satisfy. give us room enough to breath. give us a sign to where we are supposed to be. if love has made us blind, then break our hearts until our eyes are open wide. and if this love can make us weak, give us the strength to stand beside it patiently. and this is what we need to be inspired. we will reach for something more than we're required. let us hear things differently than all the others. let us all be lovesick just to need each other. if songs can change a mood, give us the words to take away an attitude. oh give us peace and quiet. leave us alone and show us who we need tonight. and this is what we need to be inspired. we will reach for something more than we're required. let us hear things differently than all the others. let us all be lovesick just to need each other.
