mummy she stayed home while daddy went to work and after school we played and 'round the dinner table we all prayed we loved our god who tucked us in our sheets before the mummy died before this emptiness destroyed my sleep don't move away

don't move away from me now i count on you at night instead of sheep stuck on the wall the letter that you sent gone to new york city, florida and every other place you went don't move away, baby

you still have the dvd i lent do you believe that death will take me when you take your breath to climates that are miles away i'll make believe you chose to stay

now as the years march on my life just limps along i just can't find a place to live, create -- to celebrate your face you moved away, baby you moved away from me then and now the only lovely future is the end i built a dream

i watched it die
and now the only lovely greeting is goodbye
