By Billy Simon, Justin Peters
I could try to call
I know the number well--it used to be mine
You've probably changed it by now
But it's worth a try
'Cause every passing hour leaves a trail of hope
That I can follow on
And if there's a chance of love, forever's not too long
CHORUS:
I'm just a passing thought in the back of your mind
A dime a dozen heart, hardly worth your time
But by a thread of hope I keep hangin' on
And I may be signing my own sorrow license
As I hope for the day fate will twist
And I can take you home
It's a sad, sad circumstance
But the hurt is worth the chance
The hurt is worth the chance
I don't see why you can't believe
I was meant for you, you were made for me
A picture perfect love, anyone can see
I've got it figured out
I can see it know
The way it ought to be
But once again I'm faced with reality
No more you and me
(REPEAT CHORUS)
I hope the hurt is worth the chance
