Everyone it seems
Is looking for the grass that's greener here
And through my window pane
The scenery flies by and disappears

So tell to me the secret
That won't let the memories fade away
Until I am home again
Where the trees stand still

Yesterday it seems
I traveled in a younger man's clothes
Living out this dream
And wandering through fields of touch and go

Moving on forever
Watching the distance fade away
But now I just want to land
Where the trees stand still

All this time
On this line
Here then I am gone

Tonight I want a life
Where the faces are the same most every day
Tonight I want a wife
To sit with me and watch our children play

All the world between us
Watching the years fade away
And when the laughing's done
We'll watch the trees stand still

Everyday, where the trees stand still
We will make a home where the trees stand still Trees stand still, trees stand still
