"Masks"

We killed someone yesterday,
But it's alright we had history,
Flashes of blue what a mystery,
But we run, just for fun

Is it alright if it's justified
We own the sky and we own the night,
Flashes of blue are the only light
We still run, I like what we've become

Where we come
Where we all run from
We don't need a mask to hide behind
We don't need a cape to help to remind

We still run, I like what we've become

The moon speaks in a different way,
We do things I can hardly say,
We wouldn't dream of doing in the day
But we smile, all the while,
I saw a light on the pavement shine,
My old life on the other side,
Without a mask to hide behind
But I run, away from

Where we come
Where we all run from
We don't need a mask to hide behind
We don't need a cape to help to remind

We killed someone yesterday,
But it's alright we had history,
Flashes of blue what a mystery,
We still run, I like what we've become

Where we come
Where we all run from
We don't need a mask to hide behind
We don't need a cape to help to remind

We own the sky and we own the night,

Flashes of blue are the only light.

We still run for fun,
I like what we've become.
