As I sit along, under blue sky's
And I don't know, I don't know why
Trees that blossom before my eye
And I don't know, don't know why

And I sing about, those old times
And I think along, your old lines
And I think about the things you do
And what we did
And I think about all the things

Turning table tops, for the last time
And I know now, now I know why
Counting cars just, as they drive by
And I know now, now I know why
And I sing about, those old times
And I think along, your old lines
And I think about the things you do
And what we did
And I think about all the things

And I sing about, those old times
And I think along, your old lines
And I think about the things you do
And what we did
And I think about all the things

If I can make you smile for the first time
Then I'll know why
Then I'll know why
