When the corps of law come home to you
Are you feeling alright, are you feeling free
And you thought that this was paradise
You trust the law, you trust justice
And they love to call it liberty
But it only serves the ones who can pay for it

If you've got money it can buy you freedom
With a fancy lawyer with respect
But if you don't, you have to trust your luck
Yes, if you don't, you get what you expect to get
And they love to call it liberty
But it only serves the ones who can pay for it

Drop your mask come out from your shelter
This is your time this is what you get
Drop your mask come out from your shelter
This is your life, what the hell did you expect

You use to say that we are equal before the law
But look what's happening all the time
It's a lie, a joke, that's for sure
A different class, another crime
