Zeus! Zeus!
Zeus by Prudence your father disgorged
Your brothers and sisters to live with their lord
Zeus tho you be the lord of the sky
One brother owns the sea, the other has gone to hell

Father and king of gods and men
Thunder your weapon, cheating your sin
Change yourself, hide yourself, do what you will
Fate will never take your throne

The eagle your bird the oak your tree
Tho married to Hera you wish to be free
Take care now Zeus tho god you be
Those children you're having will tell on thee

Father and king of gods and men
Thunder your weapon, cheating your sin
Change, hide, do what you will
Fate will never take your throne

Athene was bore by your head alone
Born in full armour and fully grown
This grey eyed maiden had wisdom and power
Justice and order in your trying hour

Zeus Zeus as your family grows
Love, lust and rape are the way it goes
The list goes on too long to say
But Hera saw all Â– like all women Â– had her way
