Right here, look at my face
Does it not look the same as before
I feel a longing for life quenched
Maybe death to you but
Now, I feel I will say what has always been there
Now, my face will shine up against his

'Cause I have waited
But he would wait forever
I have waited
But he will wait forever

Now dear, do you not see
This new glow about me
Does it look different to you
Like someone outside
Now, I'll try to tell you what has always been there
And then, maybe your face could shine up against his

'Cause you have waited
But he would wait forever
You have waited
But he will wait
I have waited
But he would wait forever
I have waited
But he will wait forever, forever

How can God see us face to face 'til we have faces?
To say the very thing that you really mean
The whole of it
Nothing more or less than what you really mean
