Trying to write one song to save the world but would you listen to me if i got my name on MTV
There's so many bands and there's so many songs what happens if i am wrong
Why should you listen to a punk rock kid like me

You heard me on the radio saw me on your tv but does that mean you'll listen, would you listen to me there's people fighting in the streesrs while children starve at our feet and yet we turn a blind eye

Im tryin to write one song to save the world write one song to save the world x2

i see the black and I see the white's and I wodner why do we have to fight havent we learned that we all look the same when we turn out the light women fight for equal rights and by this man,thats all right why do we wanna push them down to the ground

I got the inspiration, motivation, dedication and the imagination to rage against the system and bring down your facisim I got the inspiration, motivation, dedication and the imagination use music for communication to spread my message of unity to every nation write one song to save the world

Another song about unity why the fuck should you listen to me when so many bands have said it so many times before maybe this time it wont be ignored maybe this time it will strike a chord and youll join me in shouting unity

Chorus x2
