"The Golden Path"

As I walked along,
the supposed golden path,
I was confronted,
by mysterious spectres.
they pointed to the graveyard,
over on yonder hill.

I paused in cosmic reflection,
confused and wondering,
of how I came to die.

Hmmm..
I was confused.
For if I was dead,
how and why,
did I die?

But I composed myself.
And decided I should face it

But I stood paralyzed, on the supposed golden path,
and I was confronted,
by powerful demon force.

They said it was the devil,
and when he spoke,
his words flowed like glowing lava from the mouth of a volcano.
And I said: Help me lord!
I found myself in some kind of Hell!
But I did not believe in a,
heaven and hell,
world in opposites, kind of reality.

And I gained control of myself,
and I decided to press on.

And as I walked along,
the supposed golden path,
I was trembling with fear,

Oh the lions and wizards yet to come.
I seen in the distance,
silver mountains rising high in the clouds and a voice from above did whisper, some shining answer from the moon.

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.

(As I walked along)
Please forgive me, (As I walked along)
I never meant to hurt you. (As I walked along)
(As I walked along)

(As I walked along)
Please forgive me, (As I walked along)
I never meant to hurt you. (As I walked along)

Please forgive me,
I never meant to hurt you.
