The splendour of nature is always tempting
When days of grey fill every part of you
You leave without notice, disappear to the Outback
Where harmony rules I will find myself
I'm a traveller going far away
Today I leave all my old worries at home
Through the world on a walkabout I lie down and shout
Today I leave all my old worries at home
Through the world on a walkabout I lie down and shout

You know I adore the unspoiled landscapes
I need to explore every part there is
We're building a wall and it's growing higher
Hiding in fear from the final rape
I'm a traveller going far away
Today I leave all my old worries at home
Through the world on a walkabout I lie down and shout
Today I leave all my old worries at home
Through the world on a walkabout I lie down and shout
