I've had chocolate cake for breakfast
The last two days
And I'm wondering what I'm gonna do
When it runs out and all I'm left with is a belly ache.

I've been sitting by the phone for two days
But no-ones called
And I'm wondering what I'm gonna do when you run out.
And all I'm left with is a heart ache.
All I'm left with is an empty plate

I've been wanting to cry
But my tears have dried
And all that's left of you
Is the bitter taste
I'm holding on to

And now your best friend just called me
To say it's not your fault
And I'm wondering if you realise
That's what hurts me most of all
Most of all
I was not enough

I was not enough to fill you up

I've been wanting to cry
But my tears have dried
And all that's left of you
Is the bitter taste
I'm holding on to
Holding on to.

So tired of clinging on
To something that's already gone
Sick of chasing what won't be caught
I know you're not as sweet as I thought

I've been wanting to cry
But my tears have dried
And all that's left of you

Is the bitter taste
I'm holding on to
Holding on to.

I've had chocolate cake for breakfast
The last two days
And I'm wondering, wondering what I'm gonna do
When it runs out...
