

Chris Edwards "Where I Wound Up"

Visit "Where I Wound Up" on MotoLyrics.com

I wound up sifting through memories
The ones that seemed to mean so much at their time.
I wound up with head in hands
Staring at the floor
As you headed on out that door,
Taking the remains, in bits and pieces
Forevermore.
Well, I wound up, yeah I wound up

And you stared down that path
Never once lookin' back
Never once falling off of the track
That you started on.

Well, I wound up peering off
Into oblivion
Of the hopelessness that things had fallen on into.
I wound up snuffing out
All of the lights
'Cause sometimes it's better to be in the dark
Than to only have half of your sight.
Well, I wound up, yeah I wound up

And you stared down that path
Never once lookin' back
Never once falling off of the track
That you started on.

Well I wound up starin' straight
Into oblivion
Wondering if you were ever gonna come back in,
So foolish.
Yeah, I wound up boxing up all those memories
Thinkin' back to a time and how much they meant,
But how now they don't mean shit.
Yeah, I wound up,
That's where I wound up.

Visit Chris Edwards page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

