Never ending innuend- us designed to make a fool, but as things become more evident the only fool is you- living inside your head plotting towards a self-serving end your words and actions create a net in the end, what do you get? Friends are not there to use, play against another and abuse, so stop dropping your hints and clues, you've got everything to lose. You're lying through your teeth as you smile to my face then you say my karma will put me in my place, you always blame your faults on somebody else, it's time you looked inside and laughed at yourself.
