I know you've always been your daddy's jewel crown

To dance just like his diamond shines

He's built you up so high, I don't let him down

He's come too far to leave behind

To leave behind (*2)

Some time before the flood, it carried you down

Away from all you've ever known

It looked as if you'd stand alone in this crowd

But that's just it, you could never be alone

Oh no, you won't be alone

So now you're flown

From that rundown family of a broken home

How does it feel, no welcome home

No welcome home (*2)

I waited up all night to see you inside

I held the door from on my knees

I would not call it pain, it's only my pride

It's the one sure thing I'll never bleed

Oh no, I'll never bleed

So now you're flown

From that rundown family of a broken home

How does it feel, no welcome home

So now you're flown

From that rundown family and you're all alone

How does it feel, no welcome home

No welcome home (*2)

So now you're flown

Now you're flown

No welcome home
