Naked and tired from the night that's gone by
She kisses your eyes and you wake Then morning has brought you something as old and as new
As the breath that you take

The world's spinning round you in circles
Your feet feel like lead
And the weight makes you loosen your grip
And from the shoulders of giants you slip
And the ground is so hard and their voices so far
That you can't hear what they say

Tending the truth is something new
You weep without a tear in your eye
An endless repetition of the weightless words
Give strength to a timeless lie

The world's spinning round you in circles
Your feet feel like lead
And the weight makes you loosen your grip
And from the shoulders of giants you slip
And the ground is so hard and their voices so far
That you can't hear what they say

This means everything to you
Wait to see if it's true

That life is born to new seamless memories
Or is it all the same?

Standing still as a child who's been lost in a crowd of strangers
Loud and dangerous
Everytime you close your eyes, your mind is screaming
"Oh, please help me"
All you want now is so much more than you've got, you want everything

But everything is right in front of you if you just open your eyes again
Death be knocking on passion's door

That's where it all begins
All begins right here, at the end

The world's spinning round you in circles
Your feet feel like lead
And the weight makes you loosen your grip
And from the shoulders of giants you slip
And the ground is so hard and their voices so far
That you can't hear what they say

This means everything to you
Wait to see if it's true
That life is born to new seamless memories
Or is it all the same?
