Everywhere that you go, no matter where you are
I am not too proud to confess that We never seemed so far

Everyday, in every way she said "keep this smile on your face and pray"

She avoids her mirror to be young, to be young again
Time is better than medicines, for throwing us away

We're finding answers now
We flew like birds
And I will embrace it with these open arms
You spoke with broken speech
As she takes your life
I know I should be home
Anyway

Everywhere that you go, no matter where you are
I am not too proud to confess that We never seemed so far
Turning my cell off just to breath and get ready to run
Time for me to move along

The hope is where His hand has bled

There is Saturn there is me
And you try to forget everything between
Do you see the beauty that you possess ?
And you possess me...

There is a mirror that's never seen, has never seen your face
In a room that take up so much, take up so much space

One million hours from the city, lights never burn Your mind flies with the vast and solemn company of clouds and sun
And we'll forget.

Do you still believe, in your memories?

There is Saturn there is me
And you try to forget everything between
Do you see the beauty that you possess ?
And you possess me.
