Once again here is the sunlight,
Peaking through my city's grey sky.
Not anymore lost in the nighttime.
I'll feel again what is to be alive.

The rain slowly stops one day at a time,
The clouds are fading away.
Every place seems to be more open while
The landscapes stay the same.

As every summer just gets colder,
I'll enjoy it like it's the last.
I'm getting better at growing older,
But time is passing by so fast.

I feel like I live for these priceless times
That take my breath away.
Let me forget the cold of the winter nights
And just live for today.

'Cause every summer, just get's colder
I enjoy it like it's the last
I'm getting better at growing older
The time is passing by so fast, so fast

As every summer just gets colder,
I'll enjoy it like it's the last.
I'm getting better at growing older,
But time is passing by so fast.

So fast.
