Another sunny day, I met you up in the garden
You were digging plants, I dug you, beg your pardon
I took a photograph of you in the herbaceous border It broke the heart of men and flowers and girls and trees

Another rainy day, we're trapped inside with a train set Chocolate on the boil, steamy windows when we met You've got the attic window looking out on the cathedral
And on a Sunday evening bells ring out in the dusk

Another day in June, we'll pick eleven for football We're playing for our lives the referee gives us fuck all I saw you in the corner of my eye on the sidelines
Your dark mascara bids me to historical deeds

Everybody's gone you picked me up for a long drive We take the tourist route the nights are light until midnight

We took the evening ferry over to the peninsula
We found the avenue of trees went up to the hill That crazy avenue of trees, I'm living there still

There's something in my eye a little midge so beguiling Sacrificed his life to bring us both eye to eye
I heard the Eskimos remove obstructions with tongues,
dear
You missed my eye, I wonder why, I didn't complain
You missed my eye, I wonder why, please do it again

'The lovin is a mess what happened to all of the feeling'
I thought it was for real; babies, rings and fools kneeling
And words of pledging trust and lifetimes stretching forever
So what went wrong? It was a lie, it crumbled apart Ghost figures of past, present, future haunting the heart
