This thought we've made could maybe save me from
this war,
And I tried to say the waters colder than before...

But don't you see, but don't you see me unfold with every breath that I'm taking in?

Tell me how you'll make the ocean home,
(I see it coming, drawing us in more)
If you can't breathe when you lay on the ocean floor.

Across the sea we walk,
And we rise above the waves,
With confidence in every step that we take.
The tide exceeds the shore,
And swallows nations whole,
We'll build our cities far below.

Tell me how you'll make the ocean home,
(I see it coming, drawing us in more)
If you can't breathe when you lay on the ocean floor.
Tell me how you'll make the ocean home,
(I see it coming, drawing us in more)
If you can't breathe when you lay on the ocean floor.

Across the sea we walk,
And rise above the waves,
With confidence in every step that we take.
The tide exceeds the shore,
And swallows nations whole,
We'll build our cities far below.

Across the sea we walk,
Across the sea we walk,
Across the sea we...
Across the sea we walk,
Across the sea we walk,
We walk alone.
