"Hope Again"

And his voice again
Calls through the silent night to find me waking softly
From dreams that fell to far
So she turns away
A fog of tears grey with confusion at her side
Where emptiness shall lie

As her eyes set with the sun
I will hope again
And this age-old song plays on
I will hope again

And the softest sound
Of a love that lives alone within her heart
Shall sing forever more
In the still of night
See our breath as spirits dancing through the cold
To hold the moment's grace

And his words are the rain
Which fall into my life
Through the years as tears are left behind
To the edge of time we're holding onto faith
This day will carry on
No matter what shall come
