A shilleadh an deor tra/thno/na no/ 'n maidin go trom.

English Translation

I am a boy from Ireland and I'd coax a nice young girl,
I wouldn't ask for a dowry with her, I'm rich enough myself,

I own Cork, big as it is both sides of the glen and Tyrone,

And if I don't change my ways I'll be the heir for County Mayo.

Cow herding, my Leo, I did not never practice, But playing and drinking with new young women by the mountain.

If I lost my wealth and I don't think I lost my sense,
And your kiss is no more to me than a show worn for a year.

My love and treasure, don't marry the old grey man,
But marry a young man, my Leo, even though he lives
but a year,

Or you'll still be without a daughter or son above you,
Crying in the afternoon or in the morning hard.
