

Classified

"Young Soul"

Visit "Young Soul" on MotoLyrics.com

[INTRO]

(Memories in the corner of my mind, flashbacks I was laughing all the time) x3

You're getting older. Glass is half full or half empty

[Verse 1]

I turn the page on my calendar

Oh how the months fly

Another day passed, another sunrise

Another cloudy day feels like I'm out of shape

Worn down, out of place, choked up and tongue tied

The weather's getting colder

The furnace doesn't heat me it's harsh growing older

My grandmothers both passed

And the year before last, my grandfather never woke up from his nap

I used to hang around with my crew everyday

Now, we might have a drink like every other week

Life changes in a blink

Shit, my eyelids are sore

I still can't believe my aunt and uncle got divorced

Got me feeling nauseous

Too many times I almost lost it

Gotta stay responsible but I feel exhausted

And when my man Shane Jackson died

He had my eyes leaking like the kitchen faucet

I'm drained out

I wish I never had to grow up

The baggage is too heavy for anybody to hold up

I used to never have a care in the world

And it changed, and I thought am I prepared for this world?

I don't know

[Hook]

Just let it go, let it go now

Just let it go, let it go now

And you will learn how to run

And you will always be

The one who found your way, young

The sun that made the day, young

And you will walk away

Number one, one, one, run, run...

[Verse 2]

Every night we lay to rest
So every morning is a rebirth
I walked so many paths that my ankles and my feet hurt
I was always hands on, always wanted to be first
I'm glad I've grown strong and did my research
They try to tell me things get better with time
And every morning is a new day, open your blinds
I always think about the yesterdays
And the things I used to stress and be depressed about
I'm glad I axed 'em out
I'm glad I've grown
It's good to be alive
Enjoy it cause when the wind blows the years breeze by These lines on my face and bags under my eyes
A proof that I've been living and experienced a life
I know I lost some old friends and my grandmothers' gone
But I made more new friends and my daughter was born
Everything I got excited about that grew old
I get more joy watching her experience unfold
I've seen it all
The fakeness, the greatness
I'm smarter, I'm sharper, I'm confident and patient
I'm more at peace and comfortable with my identity
A lot of shit I went through as a kid can stay a memory
Let it be [Hook]
[OUTRO]
(Memories in the corner of my mind, flashbacks I was laughing all the time) X2
I turn the page on my calendar
Oh how the months fly
Another day passed, another sunrise
Another cloudy day feels like I'm out of shape
Worn down, out of place, choked up and tongue tied
Just let it go, let it go now...

Visit Classified page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.