There's a little shack on the edge of town.
Just a little shack kind of tumble down
But it used to be our secret place Where we used to meet every night.
Those broken walls saw the first embrace Saw me kiss your lips and caress your face
And the whispered words as we fell in love Saw me reaching out to dim the light.

And now in my memory, I see you standing there with me,
Though our love wasn't meant to be, you are with me
still in my memory.

Ah but all too soon I was called away
And I promised you i'll be back some day.
Then we settled down on the edge of town
But I stayed away too long.
I sent word to you I was coming back Said we'd rendez-vous in the little shack.
As I reached the door this is what I saw Just a note that said you were gone

And now in my memory, I see you standing there with
me,
Though our love wasn't meant to be, you are with me
still in my memory.

And now in my memory, I see you standing there with
me,
though our love wasn't meant to be, you are with me
still in my memory.

And now in my memory, I see you standing there with
me,
though our love wasn't meant to be, you are with me
still in my memory.
