From the top of the hill you can see all the lights
Of the diamond field, a treasure buried in plain sight
Where one man's loss is another man's gain
And no one cares about anything, worth caring about

Chorus:

Shall we go to the Diamond Field tonight

Tightrope walking in the web of light

Shall we go to the Diamond Field an' try, to seek the fortune in their eyes

One by one the lights go out and the diamond field begins to fade

It turns back into cement and stone, brick and asphalt, flesh and bone

(chorus)

(Solo)

Shall we go to the Diamond Field tonight

Tightrope walk beneath the web of light

Electric angles move against the night, shining in the Diamond Field

(Shining in the Diamond Field)
