It must have been nothing new to You
The moment I awoke to know that
I won't make it through on my own
But I recall a promise that You made
The burden won't outweigh
The load that I can bear
Surrounded by Your grace

Into Your hands, hands
Into Your hands, hands
Every burden of my every day
Into Your hands

I find my life is like a dime
Stuck between the cushions
Of a couch until You find and spend
And I know the deeper that I go
To learn to give away
Creates a space more apropos
For a king to rule

Into Your hands, hands
Into Your hands, hands
Every burden of my every day
Into Your hands

I put my burdens in the hands
That put the planets into place
So He will know me on the day
I see Him face to face

A little bit of heaven here on earth
Jesus come to live with me
The day of my new birth
When I finally put it all

Into Your hands, hands
Into Your hands, hands
Every burden of my every day
Into Your hands
