Green and wide open a soft meadow calls
Out to a very young girl, a world with no walls
Smiling, she fashions her first daisy chain
Now dancing, she sees it, the coming of rain

And the wind begins to blow
Stormy clouds across the plain
Her little lips, they tremble
To know am I safe in the rain?

Tiny heart beating fears well defined
Two tiny feet retreating the chain dropped behind
But words from her Father resound like a drum
My love is unending, my child, let it come

And the wind begins to blow
Stormy clouds across the plain
Her little lips, they tremble
To know am I safe in the rain?

Though the skies begin to pour
A gentle peace relieves her strain
She feels a Love so real, it's warm
I am safe in the rain

Lord, come, please come, like the rain
I'm not afraid anymore, let it come
Lord, let it pour, Your Love is like the rain
