the second hand tick sends the blood through my veins,
in this river of life only one things remains, it was what you did, who you were with,
and these signals we send, because this next tick could be your end

IÂ'm living for this day, because every breath we take donÂ't take your time, live it up enjoy your fair cut, live your life by the feeling down in your gut, do what you can to exceed your limits, this could be your last day and you should never regret it.

hope your day was full of laughter, hope your day was full of happiness, because you never know about the day after, you never know that this could be your end.
