I believe in star signs and I believe in film romances I believe in in fantasy and I believe with just one glance he's crazy for my eyes
'cause I believe the lies of handsome men

I believe in witchcraft and I believe in Cinderella I believe in gypsies and I believe I cast a spell that sends him to the skies
'cause I believe the lies of handsome men

Somewhere in the corner of my mind
I'm not a fool, completely blind
But even though he's hooked me on his line
I find the pleasures been mine

I believe in love songs, they seem to know just what I'm feeling I believe in Prince Charming I never guess he's double dealing How my spirits rise Believing in the lies of handsome men

Sometimes in a dark and quiet place the truth and I meet face to face
And even if his highness disappears
I keep some sterling souvenirs

So, I believe in heroes and I expect that happy ending wishing on some rainbow I pretend he's not pretending

Someday I'll get wise but right now I need the lies of handsome men
