Desperation, you've tempted me on
Too many times for me to Turn my back on you again
I lust for your gift to ease the pain
For us all

Accept the fact that their death
Can prevent our fears
Not the plot of cowardice
But the birth of a savior

Acceptance of a martyr's role
Extricate these demons from sight
Risking life and limb

Vigil martyr, set the foundation
Of tolerance at any extreme
Even the price of suicide
Even a price so high as this

The seas of love must part
To act on their behalf
For while we weep, they still rape
Raping our patience for change

Off the hook for feigned insanity
But not off the hook from the public
In the media and in the flesh
A crucifixion will be in order

A celebration of politically corrects death
We will dance with our children once again
Their security is reinstated
By this bastard's sacrifice
