On the TV there's a picture frame with two separate photos in it

My two sisters that's just about the closest they've been

My folks will tell you they've been that way forever

I can't remember the last time they were in the same room together

You'll hear stories about how they used to fight

Screaming slamming doors keep the neighbors up at night

And me their evil baby child brother

Just about the last thing they have in common with each other

Two sisters everything is awkward, tense

Don't know each other and it doesn't make sense at all

Two sisters both led lives extreme

Tried to erase any similarities

Married, single, secure, a floating balloon

Tried to forget the fact that they both came from the same womb

Two sisters a deadly combination

Avoid it at all costs it's not worth the frustration

Maybe a brother and a sister would be best for all

Two sisters had so much in common

Now they don't know each other at all

You thought that they'd grow closer with age

You were mistaken, they'll go to their graves apart

Not regretting what they didn't do

Never missing the sister that they never knew

Maybe the friendly sibling myth is a scam

I don't know any siblings that walk around holding hands

Maybe we all expect too much of them

Not only to be sisters but also to be friends

Maybe two sisters need to fight scream and weep

Maybe if two sisters don't fight

Then two sisters will never speak

Keep your theories and parent psychology

It doesn't hold with me

A frame with two separate photos in it

Is the closest that my two sisters have been

A frame with two separate photos in it
Is the closest that my two sisters have been
A frame with two separate photos in it
A frame with two separate photos in it
