When bands are talking shit about the other bands in town

And just to get ahead they drag each other down

When venues only cater to promoters with a national act

That don't care for the local bands there might be

No scene, no scene, no scene

No camaraderie, this might as well be battle of the bands

No scene, no scene, no scene

No common enemy, we might as well be playing in a talent show

I don't want to be no scene

I don't want to be no scene

You know there's a basement show where the kids can go

But you've got to be elite

They're making every standard so impossible to meet

At 21 and over you get to play the club

Where the disenchanteds go to show no love
