Now Jack is the mack and he comes around every Monday, on Tuesday and Wednesday,
Every day of the week
And even though I try to tell you that I love you
From the bottom of my heart
You had no place for me, it was all vanity now

Chorus

You fell for one a them sweet lies
The kind of doubts that ya wanna believe now
When your heart's not hearing
What your brain is saying
And you're weak in the knees
Another sweet lie
The kind you don't want to believe
When the heart's in doubt you got to stay out

Now the wine and the roses
Stop coming around sometime ago
But you won't admit that so, you pretend
I know it's hard to look your best
Wearing that same old shabby dress
So you stay at home, waiting by the phone

Chorus

For another a them sweet lies.
The kind of doubts that you wanna believe.
When your hearts not hearing
What your brain is saying
And your weak in the knees.
Another sweet lie.
The kind of doubts that you wanna believe now.
When the hearts in doubt
You should know to stay out of.

Now it gives no pleasure to say
I told you so, it's been hard to keep it low
Knowing the things I know
Maybe in another place and in another time
Under different circumstances
You will find happiness so I suggest
Don't take foolish chances no

Another big wheel coming

Now the wine and the roses
Stop coming around sometime ago
But you won't admit that so, you pretend
It's hard to look your best
Wearing that same old shabby dress
So you stay at home, waiting by the phone

Chorus

For another a them sweet lies.
The kind of doubts that you wanna believe.
When your hearts not hearing
What your brain is saying
And your weak in the knees.
Another sweet lie.
The kind of doubts that you wanna believe now.
When the hearts in doubt
You should know to stay out of.
