I know you wish you were dreaming
The silence is keeping you awake
Staring outward past your ceiling and pushing thoughts away
There's no resolution when the day is over
When there's so much left undone
There must be something better than this tired cycle
Where there's so much left unsaid
An empty bedroom can be freezing
Every midnight seems so cold
Staring outward past your ceiling
There's nothing lonelier I know
Please look out your window
You'll see the stars outside
Just think of how wide the sky is Before you close your eyes tonight
