Breathing our way through the same choking mud that used to be our water our bread and butter Closing to the end the suffocation even greater in bed the fright
that used to be our guiding light And we no longer know if this is real have we forgotten how it is to feel please speak to me now come answer me how cast away and burn your wretched disguise be direct and say what's on your mind stop killing me

toss out your bravery!
And if our ways would cross be sure that no one even knows us and if you gave the look be sure I read you like an open book Fighting my way gasping on, yearning to stay away from this nightmare
Step a bit aside move on catch what used to be your life a double edged knife.
