All along
I tried to map out exactly
What I want
But you seemed to miss the signs
I guess they were more subtle than I thought
I should've known it all along

I want that
I want that picture perfect couple
In my grandma's vintage photograph
All I ask
Is for the world right at my fingers
And your heart right in the palm of my hand
And when I've laid it all out for you
But you still can't seem to go and figure it out
So now, I'm running out

Here we are
Time to go our separate ways
We could talk
But it'd take us right back to
That same old story where we started once before
Did I really make it all that hard?

I want that

I want a picture perfect couple
Like in my grandma's vintage photograph
All I ask
Is for the world right at my fingers
And your heart right in the palm of my hand
And when I've laid it all out for you
But you still can't seem to go and figure it out
So now, I'm running out

We could run
Run around in circles and pretend
But what's the point
When a beginning's just another end of something not worth starting over?

I want that

I want the whole world at my fingers
And your heart right in the palm of my hand
Iâ€™ve laid it out all for you
But you still canâ€™t seem to go and figure it out
So now, Iâ€™m running out
