If I could click my heels three times and be back in your arms
Instead of staring at the rain I would,
But the good witch won't appear and your note's still lying here
It don't take a wizard to know you're gone for good.
But somewhere under the rainbow,
The rain won't be falling,
And I won't be calling your name like I do,
I'll see all the colors, not just every shade of blue,
Somewhere under the rainbow I'll be over you.
If you only had a heart that still was pure and true,
The road ahead would still shine just like gold,
But your sparkling emerald eyes gaze at someone else
tonight,
No, since you left, this place just ain't like home.

But somewhere under the rainbow,
The rain won't be falling,
And I won't be calling your name like I do,
I'll see all the colors, not just every shade of blue,
Somewhere under the rainbow I'll be over you.
The weatherman says nothing but more rain in sight,
No twisters, no soft whispers, just another lonely night.
But somewhere under the rainbow,
The rain won't be falling,
And I won't be calling your name like I do,
I'll see all the colors, not just every shade of blue,
Somewhere under the rainbow I'll be over you,
Somewhere under the rainbow I'll be over you.
