(verse1)

You've been tangled up and tied to that old ball and chain.

Dragging your past around, tortured by the pain.

You've been living in bondage to those old memories.

But calvary has paid your debt and grace holds the key

(chorus)

You've got to let it go and leave it at the cross.

You've got to lay it down, turn your back to it all.

Your freedom tomorrow is accomplished today.

But you've got to let it go, put it down, and just walk away.

(Verse 2)

You know that sin is a prison that locks you away.

It takes all your freedom with a price you can't pay.

But your pardon was granted if you'll only believe.

The friend of sinners bore your shame,

so you could go free.

(bridge)

Walk away don't you ever look back,

Get free from that ole tie that binds.

(2nd chorus)

You've got to let it go and leave it at the cross.

You've got to lay it down, turn your back to it all.

Your freedom tomorrow is accomplished today.

But you've got to let it go, put it down, and just walk away.
