When I feel so alone
I can't even look down
When no one is there when I look around with no purpose or self control
It leads me to the darkest of corners
and you light my way out

Long walks and deep talks on the trail by the river Cardigans and strong winds
The older couple holding hands
And at the fork in the road you lead me the right way out

When all laughter is gone and I think about moving on To heaven or wherever You make me tough it out

When I feel so alone
I can't even look down
When no one is there
When I look around
with no purpose or self control
It leads me to the darkest of corners
and you light my way out
